The Name Of God Stolen From The East

In Hinduism Svava is the main name of god and god as sound and Svava in Sanskrit also means the vowels and there are sixteen of them. The name of God is the vowels in Hinduism. The vowels in Hinduism are ruled by Shiva. 16 is the ancient number of God from India to Greece and in Sanskrit the original language each vowel is given one number of the 16 digits of the Moon. The Moon represents all the vowels and the Moon God is Shiva. The Moon on its own also represents the A letter which all the vowels are emanations of. In Sanskrit the Moon is the ancient symbol of the serpent. The chakras and the three main nadis that each chakra is created by when they overlap. And each gets a vowel.

The vowels represent the soul of the letter in Sanskrit just as they represent the soul of the universe, each consonant is placed with all seven vowels such as Ku, Ka, Ki, and on this is also in the Kabbalah with the Hebrew letters. This is the same in the ancient Greek scripts as well. The consonant can not be spoken without a vowel. The consonant represents the material and is given the symbol of the material world the square and the vowel the circle the symbol of spirit. The vowels the circle is placed within the square to give it life. Just as the body needs a soul to exist. This is the image behind the cube of Kabbalah which was stolen from the Greeks, Egyptians and Hindus.

The ancient Greeks and Egyptians like the Hindus stated the name of God is the vowels. The Hindus the Greeks and Egyptians grouped 7 main vowels the seven that rule the seven planets which rule the seven chakras. The 7 main vowels are called the 'seven mothers' in Hinduism. The seven chakras together are what is called "god" in Kabbalah, the seven vowels. And the Kabbalah states the name of God is the seven vowels of creation which relate to the seven days of creation. This is also commented on by ancient writers such as Eusebius that the Jews used the seven vowels for the name of their God.

The Jews wrote the name of their God openly in the ancient world as IAO. The IAO is the trinity of the seven vowels in the Greek and Egyptian which were the same. IAO represents all seven vowels. And the God Abraxas which the Jews took their Kabbalah Abracadabra talisman from. Abracadabra means "As I speak so do I create" the name of creation in Kabbalah. Abraxas was a Pagan God that represents with the seven letters of its name the seven planets which get the seven vowels and each planet rules one day of the week, which are the seven days of creation in Kabbalah. And under the image of Abraxas is wrote the sacred name of Abraxas that name being IAO. The ancient Roman and Greek writers called IAO the name of the Pagan sun god. This is from the East the three vowel positions which all the others manifest from are IAU in Sanskrit and IAU means "God" in Sumerian. This is where Jupiter comes from the name of the head god of the Romans and Greeks. The Roman's spelled the J as I in Jupiter. Its Iaupater which means Father God. Jupiter is the Crown chakra.

In Kabbalah the highest name of God is Aleph its left silent symbolically because the A represents all the vowels as well and as the ancient Greeks stated the vowels represent the planets and the planets exist in ether not air therefore their sounds can not be heard they are silent. But only articulated in spoken form as the seven vowels. The letter A represents the element of Ether in the Hindu and Western world which is silent in the symbolic sense. This the meaning of the unspeakable name of god. The seven vowels. This is also why Zeus was called the IAO, Zeus represents the element of Aether in the ancient Greek world. Zeus is Jupiter to the Greeks the IAO or IAU.

Around 5,000 years ago there was a Global-conflict that destroyed the World-Vedic Civilization. Then, out of this came the rise of the smaller-and-smaller Empires that were easier for the enemy to divide-and-conqueror in time.

This is probably why the Jews appeared around this time.

Did the Angel Nordics and Reptilian/Greys attack first and throw the world into darkness and then the Jews arrived in India and then invented Zoroastrianism and Jainism, followed by Judaism?”
